Scott Boyle's Plein Air Workshop Description

This will be a 3 day plein air oil painting workshop and a continuation of the workshop held last year in the beautiful Blue Ridge Mountains in and around Burnsville, NC below Mt. Mitchell. Each day Scott will do a quick demo outdoors along with group discussion about painting techniques, materials, with an emphasis on simplifying complicated subject matter and making quick decisions. We will concentrate on the basic elements of painting and will include exercises to reinforce foundational skills needed to paint outdoors more effectively. Some of these skills will include selecting a scene, composition, values, color, understanding your limitations, how to use color to push value, using a smaller palette (less colors). He will encourage everyone to create 2 painting each day. By the end of this workshop you will have learned many things that will improve your outdoor painting ability and understanding.

This workshop is designed for painting in oils. If you have never painted in oils, this will be a good workshop for you to start. Other mediums are welcome though the workshop will be most helpful for artists working in oils

Transportation, portable easel, and some equipment required. A detailed supplies list will be sent out by June 1st.
